NEW-YORK, SATURDAY MORNING, FEBRUARY 15, 1845.

gives a full account of the late Fourier Convention at Boston, with the Resolutions adopted, the Report of the Executive Committee, by Chas. A. Dana, &c. &c. Harriet Murtineau's letter, giving a detailed account of her recent cure of chronic disease by Mesmerism, is among the contents. From a long "Letter from a Member* of an Association to a Friend." We make the following ex-

You see, then, that we are not dabbling in mere experiments, but have undertaken the solemn work of applying to society, which is now an internal chaos, (I speak knowing well what I say,) those supreme laws of Harmony and Order whereby the whole Universe is regulated. We aim to change the social and political condition, not of a few hundred souls, but of the whole world; for when the sublime spectacle of a really human society shall once be seen, all men will, even from mere selfishness, desire to partake of such benefits and such happiness. This I say also, knowing well what I say, for I do not speak from enthusiastic hope, but from cool reason and judgment. You will perceive, also, that one who holds these views is quite independent of any attempt to realize them practically in society. Such attempts may fail which are here collected. Here is love of a deeper purity and sincerity than the world knows of; here is friendship that might put ancient heroes to shame; here is faith so high and changeless that common constancy has no lustre beside it, and here are wise hopes so great and inspiring that an old prophet might have thanked God for the joy of conceiving them in his heart. And if I were actuated only by a sagacious selfishness, I should not return to civilization; for whatever be our present disadvantages, I am sure that in those things which a man of the world first of all regards, we shall ultimately gain the approval of men of the world, who yield their sincere approbation to all profitable speculations. We shall, unless some event occurs which I do not now foresee, amass wealth and surround ourselves with comforts which no one of us, single-handed, could hope for.

mow foresee, amass wealth and surround ourselves with comforts which no one of us, single-handed, could hope for.

In Association no one "works for a crowd," to use your own expression, nor is any one compelled or expected to love all as brothers; but it is so arranged that while we work for ourselves, we serve the general welfare, and thus even selfishness and cupidity contribute to the common advantage. Association calls for no new affections, and does not demand of men what is impossible. It only tends to develope the better side of all characters, and to make that which in civilization of necessity becomes a horrible vice, a useful servant to the interest of the whole community. Of course, I cannot explain to you the means by which these astorishing results are produced in the compass of a single letter, however protracted; but I assure you, as a man of common sense, that it is so. But these things are of course only partially attained, if all, in our American Phalanxes, where association exists only in the germ.

You will observe that, throughout, I have hardly touched upon the moral bearings of the question. If and, however, far from admitting your assertion that the frame-work of society is right either in the United States or elsewhere. The Declaration of Independence indeed embodies some vague generalities concerning the rights of man, but even those have never actually got incorporated into society. They exist in abstractions, but not otherwise. It must be confessed that our Democracy is hitherto a most miserable and halting business.

I saw an account in some of your papers, of a duel which took place nearly opposite here between a Mr. Woods and a Mr. Hebby, in which it was stated that the latter was scriously wounded. The fact was, seither was shit. I learn from good authority this was the fifth duel in which Mr. Woods has been a principal, and as he has not yet killed his man we may presume he was not considered a very dangertus shot.

hus betrayed his country mighturn out unprofitably for him after all. The Northern Loco-Focos, meluding Anti Texas Polk men, Tariff Loco-Focos, and other white black-birds, looked ghastly on vable foundations, and reach inward to the centre of things. My daily study is given to a better understanding of them in the scientific writings of those illustrious men, Swedenborg and Fourier. These great teachers, the world may think unwise or mistaken, but so it has ever been with the chief apostles of the Truth. They that know them best have the deepest reverence for their genius and learning. They will yet receive their due from a grateful Race, upon whose sublime career they have shed such light.

BINGHAMTON, Oct. IT. 1844.

Messrs. A. B. & D. Sands—I have been afflicted with Scrofula for nine years. It appeared in various forms from its commencement, but did not break out in ulcers, until, about four years ago, a large swelling appeared on my arm. I had it lanced. If then commenced enting, and continued to eat until the fleshy part of my arm, from my elbow to near my shoulder, was nearly all ulcers; it then broke out on both sides of my neck, and extended to my face. I had a number of ulcers on my ancie and bottoms of my feet. My sufferings seemedalmost intolerable. The most of the time I have been under physicians, have taken lodine. Swilm's Panacea, and other preparations, and I had nearly despared of getting relief, when I was induced by Mr. Roxford to try your Sarsaparilla. The following interesting case must commend itself to the careful attention of all similarly afflicted:

SANDS CRARRATED SARSAPARILLA.

I speak experimonally when I say that this medicine is far more effectual in the cure of chronic or acute rheumatism, than any other preparation I have ever tested. Having endured extreme suffering at times within the hast five years from repeated attacks of infimumatory or acute rheumatism. I have recently used Sands' Sarsaparilla with the happiest success; any health is now better than it has been for many mouths past, my appetite is good, and my strength is rapidly returning. I attribute this healthful chonge entirely to the use of this patent medicine. Feeling a deep sympathy with those who are afflicted with this tormenting and painful complaint, I cannot refrain from earnestly recommending to such the use of this yadable specific. Dr. Brown's practice is simple and easy—neither resorting to those painful methods which are too generally adopted, nor requiring that irksome confinement from light and air, and unpleasant restrictions in food, which are most usually enforced. Numerous cases of his successful trestment have been publicly recorded, to which he can refer, and he possesses testimonials of the value and efficacy of his mode of practice, which may be inspected by any one who favors him with a call. the deliberations of the Legislature of the State of New-York, the contrast presented by ours can but be amusing. There is none of that dignity or order which prevails in yours, and you will see many here as Legislators who appear as strangely out of place as would a donkey in a church. A friend of mune, in passing through Detroit from your State, met at one of our hotels a person whom he had met at one of our hotels a person whom he had known in one of your villages on the causal in the central part of the State, as canal-driver, dockleater, and one who was looked upon by his neighbas a very suspicious character; and asking him what he was doing here, he replied that he was as a member of the Legislature! It might maps be a question whether such Legislators to escape punishment.

Owing to the almost entire failure of the wheat crop last fall, the farmers find themselves not only unable to relieve the overburdened shelves of our merchants, but to pay what they have already incurred. Beside, our merchants brought in an unusually large quantity of goods, and our State is flooded with merchandize, which must remain on their hands till another error is harvested. till another crop is harvested. islature has instructed our Senators and Our Legislature has instructed our Senators and requested our Representatives in Congress to use real proper exertions for the re-annexation of Texas to the United States as soon as practicable. A Whig member of the House offered to amend the preamble so that the Birney voters should receive part of the credit due them for electing Polk, and thereby securing Texas, but the Locos indignantly rejected it. How ungrateful!

rejected it. How ungrateful!

Our Legislature has also requested our Senators and representatives to use all proper exertion to reduce the postage on letters, &c. Why does Congress manifest so much indifference on this subject? No question has been more agitated by the people, and, however they may have differed on other sub-ects, on this they have been unanimous in their demand for reform. POLK PROCLAIMED PRESIDENT.

Correspondence of the New-York Tribune.

Washington, Feb. 13, 1845.

The counting of the votes for President and Vice President was one of the most solemn looking scenes ever witnessed here. When Jackson was elected President, the votes counted, and the result declarid, by the President of the Convention of both Houses, there were loud manifestations of public
gy. In every other case of the kind there were some manifestations of feeling. How different in this case! The galleries were filled to overflowing.
The ladies were in great numbers; yet such a woe-betone looking assembly never was seen. Not a smile lighted up those agonized features of manhood and beauty-not a whisper of approbation when the result was declared. There were tearson the cheek of woman, and sighs in the more stubborn heart of man,

I have not your faith in isolated individual exertions. It is in this assurance that I labor, and it is that could console me, even in the entire

The ceremony being over, a few of the more hard-hearted proposed to proceed with business. This, however, was looked upon as too barbarous immediately after funeral solemnities. As is the custom after the announcement of a death, they immediately dispersed. The sky, which in the morning had been clear, was haug with black; and, as the scene closed at the Capitol, the rain descended as if it would wash out the record which the folly of Man had written. this day elected Gen. Lewis Cass U. S. Senator for eix years from the 4th of March next, vice Augustus Porter, whose term expires on that day. In the House of Representatives he received 41 out of 52, and in the Senate all but two votes. There is not a solitary Whig in the Senate; and Messrs. Littlejohn and Pratt, who voted against him, did so on the ground that, if the General went to the Senate, it would destroy his chance for the Presidency, and they made the prophecy that, if Gen. Case went into the Senate, he would not be the candidate of the Democratic party for President in 1848. That they have had a peep into the future, no one can doubt who is acquainted with the General, and knows with what he will have to contend in the Senate. With Webster and Corwin on the one hand, and Benton on the other, contending rivals for the same eminence, Cass will stand but a poor chance.
